“Deck Chair” pp 524 Hans J. Wegner 1958.

The Deck Chair is serving exactly the purpose that the name implies and stands as an obvious archetype.

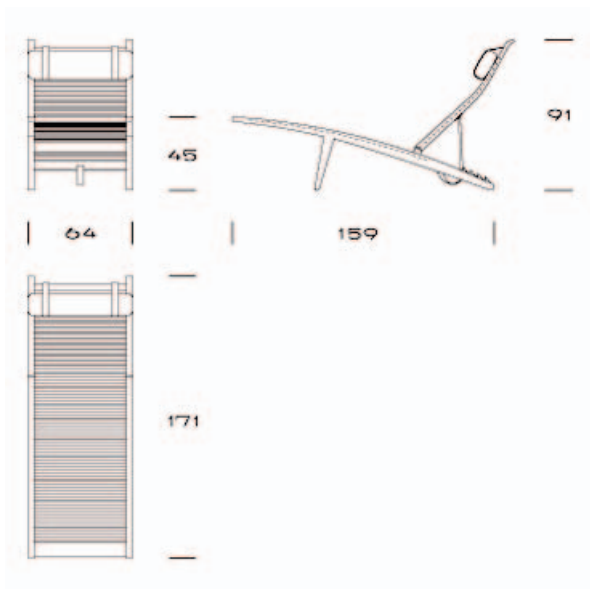

Nevertheless, it references a number of earlier Wegner designs and is basically derived from the pp512 Folding Chair and the beautiful but rare Dolphin Chairs.

The adjustment mechanism for the back of the chair is similar to that of the pp530 Tub Chair.

Despite the number of references, the Deck Chair seems to be concluded with simple means. It is an elegant and agile recliner. Although it is not made for permanent outdoor use, the flag line and the light construction will encourage one to bring it out to enjoy a sunny afternoon under a blue sky.

“Studying never interested me. I wanted to work with my hands”
